In the evening, transfer to local stall for the famous Nasi Lemak (rice cooked in coconut milk with side condiments). Join the locals to savor yourself to the variety of other side dish prepared. ** You may opt for Chinese hawker food at Jalan Alor.

Recommended: Chow Kit wet market

10 minutes walk brings you to the famous Chow Kit wet market, the largest in Kuala Lumpur. It's an olfactory overload at this lively and culturally-enriching market as you wind your way past rows and rows of packed stalls. Fresh produce, exotic fruits, tofu, an abundance of gorgeous chilies, bags of spices, piles of eggs and a staggering array of weird and wonderful things to eat. Then there are the meat stalls, with a variety of animals at every stage of the butchering process, and seafood, still in the tank or flapping on the table. There are also stalls selling shoes, clothing, silk and fabrics.

Day 03 Kuala Lumpur – Gopeng – Kuala Kangsar / SukaSuka Lake Retreat (ABF/L/D)

Starts you day early with breakfast at local stall. You'll be spoilt by the choices offers such as kuih muih (sweet or savory cakes / pastries), roti canai, nasi lemak, plenty types of local pastas and many more. You can packed some if you wish.

Your journey into the village starts here. But before that, we bring you to Gaharu Tea Valley. Gaharu, commonly known as Agarwood and also called Eaglewood, Aloeswood, ChenXiang, Jin-koh or Oud in different countries, has many beneficial and healing properties. Possessing such an array of valuable qualities, Gaharu has played a vast and significant role in Middle Eastern, Chinese and Ayurvedic cultures and the earliest documented use of Agarwood was in 600 AD but its existence in the medicinal world goes way beyond these records.

Proceed your journey to Kuala Kangsar - the royal town of Perak. Located at the downstream of Kangsar River where it flows into the Perak River, it is the main town in the administrative district of Kuala Kangsar. This charming small town has a lot of history, culture and heritage to pass down to the younger generation. The most iconic landmark is the Ubudiah Mosque and Istana Kenangan.

Settings of a traditional Malay kampong, they love to share this with their visitors — to enjoy the ambience of calmness and serenity of the environment, live the local custom and values, and thus keep the place unblemished for our future generations to enjoy.

Day 04 SukaSuka Lake Retreat (ABF/L/D)

Wake up to the natural alarm clock of the roosters. After a delicious breakfast prepared by Mak Asiah, Pak Aziz will bring you for a walk around the village to have the first hand experience mingle with the locals and see the things which you could not see in the city.

Cooking class in the afternoon with Mak Asiah is another experience that you shouldn't miss out. Fresh fish from the lake and local spices and herbs around the house, what else to say?

Note: Kayaking, boating, trekking, fishing, fish feeding, or just having a siesta on the hammock are among the things you can do. Or just lazing around and enjoy the fresh green surrounding and listen to your host with story telling....it is very interesting to know about the history, culture and current news from them.
